

Let's Be together

Author: Shole Khalili Category: Culture Sub-Category: Community Date: 1 month 4 weeks ago
For Country: Canada Happen at: Canada; Iran Star weekly magazine(2nd August 2018)

I met Mrs. Maryam Rashidian through a friend. Liaison lasted a little while, but thankfully it worked, and I found the chance to get to know the activities of her and the center that she founded, the Iranian Canadian Iranian Teens Club.

We have heard about the behavioral and psychological problems of youth. These problems are not unique to our society, although in recent years we have witnessed many of the problems that Iranian youth have encountered. The rooting of these problems is the work of specialists, and they are responsible for this, but we can have a role as a part of this community.

In the direction of finding this way I met Maryam. You need to her and find out the amount of love and interest she is making. Her focus is full of love and creativity. Where mothers and fathers along with their children work together and, according to one of the fathers, spend some hours free of virtual space with friends and family.

Last Saturday, Maryam and her other friends in the Richmond Hill ran a garage sale. The children were selling merchants that were collected by themselves and their parents. From a few days before the auction, everyone was busy pricing, pestering, and preparing for the auction. If you were here you could witness how excited the children were to sell their goods, about twenty teenagers with their families boomed for sale.

A portion of the sale is awarded to each seller, and a large portion of it is donated to the SickKids foundation. In the last talk with Maryam, I was told that $ 775 has been donated to the Children's Hospital today. We should not stop at all spending time for teens and getting them to participate in collaborative work.